BULB CULTURE

WHY ARE THERE BULB FAILURES?

Many failures this year are due to the drought. Bulbs are living plants and need water during the winter months to produce a sustaining root system. If through lack of water bulbs do not produce a good root system, they will produce leaves, but the flowers quite often will be blind.

CARE OF BULBS AFTER THEY ARE THROUGH FLOWERING

After a bulb has flowered it prepares itself for next year's bloom by withdrawing all the sap out of the leaves and stem, and storing this in the bulb. No bulb should be lifted before the foliage has died down completely. When the foliage has withered, and can easily be twisted off, the bulbs are ready for storage.

SHOULD BULBS BE REMOVED OR LEFT IN THE GROUND?

If possible leave bulbs in the ground; there will be less loss. Bulbs can be moved any time after flowering, providing enough soil is taken along so that the root system is not disturbed too much. Heal-in in an out-of-the-way place and let them die down slowly. Keep watering the bulbs until the leaves have withered.

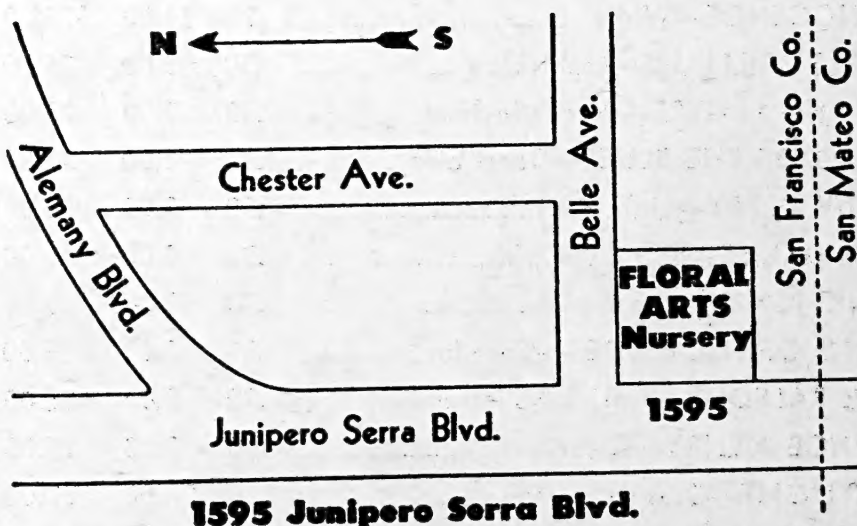

TULIPS AND HYACINTHS should be kept dry during the summer months. If you cannot keep them dry, lift the bulbs and store them in a dry and cool place.

DAFFODILS can stand water any time of the year. If you must move your daffodils because they are crowding each other, wait until the foliage has died down. Lift the bulbs, separate them and replant immediately.

HOW LONG WILL TULIP AND HYACINTH BULBS LAST IN CALIFORNIA?

The average life of a tulip or hyacinth bulb in California is two or three years. Due to our warm California summers, the maturing process—the forming of a new flower in the bulbs—is very rapid and consequently shortens the life of the bulb.
